The British Micropalaeontological Society was founded in 1970 to further the study of micropalaeontology. Meetings and demonstrations are held regularly throughout the year and the Society now publishes a number of both serial and occasional publications. Membership is open to individuals and to libraries on payment of the appropriate annual subscription. Rates for 1988 are:

- Library membership: £30
- Ordinary membership: £15
- Student membership: £7.50

Student members are persons receiving full-time instruction at educational institutions recognised by the Society. Application forms for membership should be obtained from the Treasurer.

The journal will accept original papers and review articles dealing with all aspects of micropalaeontology. Instruction to authors may be obtained on request from the Editor. Information on advertising rates may also be obtained from the Editor, to whom all camera-ready artwork should be sent.
